with one of the largest and best assorted stocks in the West. It will be pretty hard for the business to dodge us, we hope, for we are protected on one side by price, on the other by quality, and in the rear by style. Pretty hard to evade this proposition, isn't it?

The Recollection of the Quality remains long after the Price is forgotten.

E. MICHENER MAKING GOOD.

Roads Being Built.

It will be remembered that E. Michener, M.P.P., devoted a good deal of attention towards improving the roads in the rural districts last year. His system as then laid down was to establish trunk roads to the extreme limits of the district east and west. The road was as far as Sylvan Lake was completed last year and this year the road has been carried nearly to the Saskatchewan, with the ultimate object of reaching Rocky Mountain House. A great deal of grading and filling work has been done, far more than ever before. The road gang are now working near the new steel bridge spanning the Medicine river. To this trunk road all side roads lead and it will be of great service to the settlers.

The blind line west of town on the Burnt Lake road is to be opened up, and a road west of town is to be built across the front of the Stent property, making the hill much easier to climb. The east road to the coal mines is also being fixed up. About seven hundred will be spent on the divide near the residence of W. P. Goff. The road will be built on a seven per cent. grade and every 600 feet there will be a 50 feet rest for teams.

Neilson-Rogers.

On Wednesday afternoon, September 28th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Rogers, Poplar Ridge, presented a very festive appearance when their third daughter, Susie Mazie, was united in the holy bonds of wedlock with Frederick Andrew Neilson, eldest son of A. F. and Mrs. Neilson, Great Falls, Montana, and formerly of Cross Roads district, and grandson of F. Fisher, North Red Deer.

The bride was charmingly gowned in a semi-princess dress of pretty green and white striped silk, with under blouse of tucked net, and carried a bouquet of pretty green fern and white flowers, her only ornament being a gold brooch, set with diamonds and pearls, the gift of the bridegroom; and was given away by her father. Miss May Hart, cousin of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and looked charming in a brown silk and green gown with net and velvet trimmings. Mr. George Meaton, of Aberdeen City, Scotland, acted as groomsmen, and was a worthy attendant of purple leather from his native land.

After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Mr. Tymor, of Red Deer, a sumptuous repast was partaken of and a pleasant afternoon was spent by the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Neilson left on the evening train for Edmonton and others northern points, amidst showers of rice and good wishes from their future happiness.

The bride's travelling suit was of brown satin and a few white ribbons of the bride were present. Mr. and Mrs. Neilson were the recipients of many handsome and useful gifts, as both were very popular in the surrounding district. They intend making their future home in Great Falls, Montana.

AN OPTIMIST.

If you want to meet an optimist, call on Andrew Wylie, the obliging agent in charge of the Canadian-American Land Co.'s office, opposite the Alberta Hotel. Mr. Wylie says nothing can prevent Red Deer being a large and prosperous city. He has full confidence in our future. He says the people of Calgary have more faith in Red Deer than a good many have in our own town. He has devoted some years to traveling through numerous States of the Union, and he knows whereat he speaks. If the people of the United States could be made acquainted with the splendid resources of the Red Deer country, they would be such a rash that the town would be unable to accommodate the people. Alberta will have fifteen million people in twenty years, he says, and Red Deer is bound to have its share.

What we want is a few dozen men of Mr. Wylie's stamp to help on the good work of making the town known abroad. He has already made some large deals in real estate, and his company has done more to advertise Red Deer than any other firm the past few months.

THE MANXMAN.

That a child can be the medium of reconciliation between parents is a well recognized fact; that love for a child may change the entire aspect of a person's career; that reformation is brought about in more ways than one, through the influence of a child's affection; that love of children denotes an affectionate and kindly spirit; that no human being can be thoroughly bad and beyond redemption who shows a spark of sympathy and generosity where children are concerned.

ALBERTA CENTRAL PUSHING WORK

Three New Camps Have Been Established.

Three camps have been established by the Alberta Central Railway Company for construction purposes west of the river. The farthest west is three miles north of Eberts. The work is at present under control of Chief Engineer, J. Grant MacGregor, who has the contracts well in hand. While this entails a great deal of extra labor on the company, the work is better done. The company intends pushing work with all speed and have about 200 teams and 300 men employed on the dumps, and more are wanted. It is hoped a good portion of the western grading to the Medicine river will be finished this year.

Considerable work has been done on the Y at the yards on the hill, so connection can be made with the C.P.R. with little difficulty. The line will be finished to the river as soon as possible, and the work on the piece of the large steel bridge gone on with during the winter months, so that in the spring nothing will be left to do but put on the steel spans, the width of the bridge being 1600 feet.

The decision of the company to make a strong forward movement will be greeted by the citizens of Red Deer and surrounding country with pleasure, and will tend to stiffen prices for real estate all along the line.

PROGRAMME OF CONCERT.

The following splendid programme will be given in the assembly hall of the public school to-morrow, Thursday evening, Oct. 6th, in honor of the visiting teachers. It is hoped there will be a large attendance of citizens. The admission fee will be 25 cents to be devoted to the decoration fund.

DELBURNE.

The sale of lots of Delburne town site, on the G.T.P. railway, which opened yesterday at the office of W. G. Clendenning in the News block, created considerable excitement in town. Some parties sitting on the door step all night to secure choice selections. Mr. Clendenning reports sales quite as good as could be expected. A large number of lots having been sold in town and to outside parties. The townsite is backed by the G.T.P. Co. and all business passes through their hands and deeds are given by them.

Baseball News

Red Deer took another fall out of Alix at Lacombe Friday, defeating them 6-5 in what appeared to be a very even game. As a matter of fact, the Red Deer team were greatly at disadvantage, owing to the fact that they had ten men to beat, the tenth being the umpire. It doesn't seem right to kick after winning the game, but it is an acknowledged fact that if the local nine had not been sweet tempered and regarded the umpire as a joke, that official's nearest relatives would now be wearing crapes. The features of the game were Mills-batting and a star catch by Washburn in the outfield. Mann also grabbed a hard one. Gaetz was not up to his usual form, and shows lack of practise. The score should have been about eight to two, but this is the way it stood:

NOTES

Ain't it funny what a difference just a few hours make? Not long ago Mr. Bell, the Alix sport, came after the Brewery Cup. He got it. He paid Mr. Dretchko, who is now pitching for St. Paul, a little more money than Hardisty was paying him, and slipped one over on both Red Deer and Hardisty. Fine. But did you hear the holter he put up when he learned that Red Deer had strengthened up with an outfielder and first baseman? He said he wouldn't play! So there!

Everone on the Red Deer team got a hit. Mills got three singles and a homer, and Kellackey got three singles.

Turner caught a first class game, and grabbed Mills' curves like a veteran.

Kellackey may make his home in Red Deer for the winter. It took Bell three hours to bolster up courage enough to play the game.

Steps will be taken in February to form a Central Alberta Baseball League, and there is no doubt of its success next year.

Good Real Estate Buys

The evidence of splendid steady growth in Red Deer was never more apparent than now.

A landlord hasn't long to look for a tenant these days. Confidence in the future was never so strong. Our town is in the limelight throughout the Province. Visitors speak of us as having the cleanest and prettiest town in the West. No town has laid better foundations, and no town has brighter prospects. We cite these facts that are of course patent to all, simply to demonstrate that the present steady upward tendency in Realty values is fully warranted.

Some large transfers have taken place recently. In every sale a good profit has been realized. We have personal knowledge of one property that sold less than three years ago for $2500 having changed hands this week at $6,000, and the same property has not yet reached its ultimate value.

Watch our windows for good things. Here are a few:

- I. 2 acres of the finest sub-division property in Grandview. $500 buys the block.
- II. 4 lots, trackage property, on Gaetz Avenue for $3200. Terms.
- III. 2 close in business lots, Gaetz Avenue, with revenue producing house, $2000.
- IV. 2 lots in north Red Deer, with building, only $300.

Our knowledge of Red Deer values has been gained through eight years experience. We are at the service of our clients.

LIBERALS FREE TRADERS.

But They Vote for High Protective Tariff.

One effect of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's tour through the West has been to place before the country the exact position of the Liberal party on the trade issue. For a long time it has been preaching protection and collecting the votes of the low tariff element. The western farmer confronted the Premier with so energetic a demand for low tariff, and made a reminder of his former free trade promises, that several things happened. One was that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, always anxious to please his immediate audience, uttered a lot of vague free trade sentiments. Another was that he summoned up courage enough to tell the farmers that there must be careful regard for "vested interests," and that even agricultural implements cannot be admitted free of duty so long as the United States maintains duties on any of the materials which enter into their construction. Fifteen or twenty years ago these considerations were treated by the whole Liberal party as base subterfuge. Sir Wilfrid Laurier today is speaking the language of the Conservative campaign literature of 1878, and 1883, and 1891, and 1896.

Yet another thing was that the Prime Minister dealt with the question of reciprocity in the language of the protectionist. He said that the disposition of United States politicians is to look after Number One,
and that that must be the disposition of Canada. He is anxious to secure the market across the border for the Canadian people, but not at the sacrifice of Canadian industries and Canadian self-respect. This is exactly what Conservatives said in their day of power, and exactly the language at which the Liberal press
used to wax satirical and angry.

A fourth consequence has been that the Eastern Liberal press has been stirred up to make sundry plain statements that the present tariff will be maintained by the Liberal party for an indefinite period. The Globe, for example, explained in effect that free trade is right, that protection is wrong, but that if the Liberal party were to attempt to give lower tariff it would go out of office, and therefore it will stick to high tariff. The Evening Times of St. John, N.B., says: "Sir Wilfrid has no quarrel with free trade, but everybody, including the grain growers, knows that free trade is at present out of the question." These are samples of Liberal newspaper utterances.

In short, the Liberal party has been dragged into the open. It intends to keep on practising protection because it believes that the majority of the electors are protectionist and because it wishes to remain in office. It still believes free trade to be right, but that is a small matter compared to staying in office. It has hoisted a flag inscribed: "Any policy, right or wrong, that means office."

SEES VATICAN TRANSFER FROM ROME TO CANADA.

Rev. Dr. Graham Believes Monteal is to Become the Seat of Roman Catholic Power.

To an overflowing congregation
Rev. Dr. William T. Graham, pastor of the First-Avenue Baptist Church, Toronto, not only picked up the gauntlet thrown down by Father Vaughan in his recent challenge to Protestantism, but levelled his weapons at the doctrine of Roman Catholicism in general. His text was found in Hebrews: "By the
which will we be sanctified through the offering of Jesus Christ, once for all."

Dr. Graham referred to the interest aroused in the general public by the recent gorgeous congress at Monteal. Everything had been done that would appeal to the senses.
Here he contrasted the simplicity of God, and of the Apostle Peter, who went about teaching in his ragged clothes.

"I hold that it ought to be absolutely impossible, in this country, where there is no state church, for the militia to be called upon to take part in any such demonstrations," he said. "It was not done when we Baptists had our conference, or the Presbyterians, the Methodists, or the Anglicans. Let the state keep out of all such celebrations, and favor no religion."

"It was the Pope, the Italian priest, and the church of Rome that were exalted throughout this entire congress, and Christ and his church were kept in the background. I have lived in Montreal, and I can say to you, from first-hand knowledge, that it was for nothing more than to show the people in that district the power of the church, that all this display was made.

"I do not profess to stand up here before you and tell you that I am a prophet's son; but mark my words, before long you will see an effort on the part of the Catholic Church to remove the seat of the papacy from Rome to Montreal. In Italy the church has been considerably weakened of late years, but Catholicism has lost in the old land
it is making up in the new.

"I have no quarrel with Father Vaughan. He had a perfect right to say what he believed, and I believe he meant what he said when he cried
"I hate Protestantism." I admire him for his courage. Many of us, I am afraid, are not half so outspoken toward what we believe to be our Protestant doctrine. However, he made a statement that Protestantism was a religion without a sacrifice, or a soulless religion. That he came to Toronto and told us that the papers had misrepresented him.
He claimed that he put what he had to say in the form of a syllogism.
If Father Vaughan knows anything
his syllogism wasn't worth a button for the simple reason that he did not prove his major premise. Until he proves this part of his argument, his statement is an insult to our intelligence."

TWO PILLARS OF CHURCH.

Dr. Graham then read quotations from a special book of Catholic instruction, compiled by John T. Sullivan and authorized for study by the bishop. Selections were read in which the author gave instructions for the performing of masses. Dr.
Graham stated that he believed that the mass and the confessional were the two pillars on which the Roman Catholic religion was founded.

"Get the people to believe that the mass is a humbug, and that there is nothing in the confessional," said the pastor, "and they will forsake them as they have done in the past where the light has come in."
Drawing comparisons between the two doctrines, Dr. Graham stated that in Protestantism the sacrifice of Jesus Christ on the cross was a sacrifice, once for all, and forever.
He believed that against every sin committed, there were three witnesses, God, the moral law, and the conscience, and the sacrifice of the penitent sinner must appeal to all three to be of any real value. The sacrifice of the mass, which was made through the priest, was not sufficient.

"These people have not the truth," continued the doctor. "They are in the dark. You may talk of idol-worship. If anything their teaching is worse. During the war of 1812, when the British burned the city of Rome, he found only five per cent. of the people able either to read or write. How is it that Spain has tired of the rule of the Catholic church and has kicked over the traces? and who was it that burned the Huguenot of France? This religion cursed Italy. It has cursed America and it will curse Canada if we ever let it get a grip on us."

Presentation to J. G. Gody.

The Great West Lumber Company
Men Show Appreciation.

The employees of the Great West
Lumber Company met at the residence of J. G. Gody, who has been foreman of the yards and mill for the past year and a half, on the 15th inst., and presented him with a beautiful gold handled umbrella and a splendid cabinet of silver tableware, on his withdrawing from the company. At the time Mr. Gody was so surprised that he could not express his feelings. He does so now to his old friends, as follows:
To the Employees of the Great West
Lumber Co.

Gentlemen--The surprise caused by that beautiful present you made me, so discomfited me that I had no words suitable to the occasion. Consequently I adopt this method of thanking you, not for the intrinsic value, which was no small amount,
but for the motive that actuated it.
I have learned from experience that there always is, or should be, a sympathy existing between a foreman and his crew in order to secure the best results, but had not the re-motest idea of so profound a feeling of regard existing between us.

I do acknowledge that the worries and perplexities of my position as foreman often compelled me to speak unkindly, but can truthfully say that I always fostered your interests as far as I could.

And as I journey through life, protected from the inclemency of the weather by that beautiful gold handled, silk umbrella, or sit at my table enjoying that beautiful cabinet of silver, my mind will revert to the many pleasures and trials we passed through together.

And let who may be my successor, treat him with the courtesy due his office. Be honest, faithful and true in your several stations of life ever remembering that though inexperience
or prejudice may close the eyes of your employer to your worth, it will not close the eyes of the world, and it is by these eyes you are judged.

And it matters not to what port
in life or location the ship of fate
may carry me, you will always be welcome to share in my joys. Live good, sober, honest lives, and if we never meet on earth again, let us try and meet in that beautiful structure above, where shakes, black knots and other defects are not admitted.

Again let me thank you most sincerely, and beg to remain,
Ever your true friend,
JAMES G. GODY.

WOODLANDS!

Increase in Value; Prices Going Up.

The old road up the hill to the north is to be closed. The new road will bear to the west along the side hill, and turning north, connects with road through subdivision.

Woodlands subdivision is on Section joining town. Divided in 5-acre lots. High & dry bench land; rich, deep, black loam. Land to suit anyone; clear stretches of meadow; groves of trees; Park-like land. For the home maker this is a rare chance. All the health and freedom of the country; all the privileges and advantages of the town. Splendid location for poultry raising or market gardening. For the investor seeking a substantial subdivisional proposition, it is here. All these lots have two roads, and some have three. They will cut up favorably into building lots. One of these 5-acre blocks will give 50 building lots. Only 15 minutes walk from town.

Prices—From $90 per acre. Terms—One-third down, one-third in 12 and 24 months.
Inspection invited. Guide provided.

A LESSON FOR CANADA.

The handwriting on the wall in the United States is significant. The State of Maine has gone democratic in politics for the first time in thirty years. The significance is that a majority of the people of the United States cannot be counted upon to support men or things in politics which seem to be on the dishonest or unscrupulous side.

The Republican party has been making a bad showing of late years in two respects: First, in failing to carry out fairly a pledge to the people regarding tariff revision; secondly, in being subservient or unwelcome of corporate or other interests engaged in or liable to be engaged in looting public assets or, in an indirect way, the pockets of the people.

In the United States the Laurier Government would never have lasted so long as it has done in Canada. To start with it broke practically every political pledge the party had ever made. Continuously since, department after department has shown incompetence of graft, or both wilfully sheltered and loudly defended by ministers and members of parliament.

Le Canada, the Liberal organ in Montreal, says the tricolor became the flag of France more than a century ago, and not long since the French-Canadians adopted it as their national flag. In a city like Montreal, where the population is three-quarters French-Canadian, the tricolor should be treated as the flag of the majority, and in a demonstration that is not officially British it should be given the place of honor on the municipal buildings. At the City Hall, during the week of the congress, the tricolor was floated behind the edifice, and the place of honor was occupied by "another flag," the flag of another nationalistic group. "Le Canada" approves of the criticism made in the City Council of those who relegated the tricolor to a second place, for it holds that the French-Canadian population, which has given so many proofs of its tolerance, should be treated with justice. On the other hand, the Montreal Gazette takes the view that the only flag for the public buildings is the Union Jack—Toronto Mail.

In the United Kingdom drunkenness has decreased during the past few years. This is a welcome piece of news, for there can be no doubt that the excessive use of intoxicants of a highly injurious quality has been common, particularly in the large centres of population. There are three reasons assigned for the better state of things. One is the increased price of liquors. The second is the organization of social clubs where persons may drink mild beverages, such as ale, without going to the licensed premises. The third is the work done by advocates of temperance. All three are the results of moral suasion. They indicate that this form of attack upon excessive drinking is the most effective. When a man is convinced he will act.

Alberta boasts a larger cultivable area than any other province. It is said to have 96,000,000 acres of arable land, whereas Saskatchewan has 93,000,000, Manitoba 23,000,000 and Ontario 56,000,000. The most westerly of the prairie provinces has thus a very hopeful outlook. What helps it is the fact that it has a mild south and a promising north.

Westerners Want Govt. Operation.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Hon. Walter Scott, Premier of Saskatchewan, arrived in Toronto in the morning on Saturday. He said that he had been in the capital solely for the purpose of attending the conference of provincial representatives and Federal Government experts on the proposed legislation regarding explosives. The Dominion Government called the conference together in order to obtain advice upon certain features of the proposed bill which might have been regarded as infringing provincial rights.

Mr. Scott said that his trip east had no connection whatever with the Hudson Bay Railway project. He had seen Hon. George P. Graham only for a few moments in the routine of a hotel in Ottawa. He had not come to Toronto to confer with Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann, who would like to operate a line built to Hudson Bay by the Government, under similar arrangement to that whereby the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company will operate the eastern section of the national Transcontinental system. Mr. Scott said that he had always been an advocate of Government ownership of the Hudson Bay road. He did not care to express an opinion upon the operation of the road because that subject involved a number of others, such as steamship connections.

"There is only one opinion in the west as to the railway's necessity," said Premier Scott. "As far as I can gather, too, popular sentiment seems to demand that the Federal Government not only construct, but hold the title to the new line. The people believe that if it is retained in the hands of the Government, there will be less difficulty in all roads obtaining equal rights over the line, and, in addition, an absolute control of rates will be secured."

Premier Scott said there was no foundation for the rumors that in the event of Hon. Frank Oliver becoming Lieutenant-Governor of Saskatchewan, he would join the Federal Cabinet. Mr. Scott said that the returns from the wheat crop of the province would exceed 68,000,000 bushels.

MANGLED BODY FOUND IN BUSH.

Revelstoke, B.C., Sept. 26.—Frank Julien, a pioneer resident, was approached by three Italians on Tuesday, who, stating they were about to settle nearby, offered to help him clear his land for a few days, in return for axes and implements. He apparently accepted the offer, and on Wednesday morning left for bushland with them.

Not returning, a search party was organized, and after three days' hunt, found Julien's mangled remains covered under brush, the head fearfully mangled and nearly severed. An axe near by indicated the hasty flight of the murderers. Julien was instrumental in the prosecution of several Italians for assaulting his son-in-law, Orsini, particularly of one named Sildio, at Calgary, the latter being subsequently given a jail sentence. The police believe this is a Black hand tragedy in revenge.

A DISGRACE TO TORONTO

The second engineer of the isolation hospital Toronto testified at an official inquiry as follows a short time ago: "I had to remove the bodies of the patients from the wards to the hospital morgue. I disposed of the mattresses from the diphtheria and scarlet fever wards and all the poultices and garbage. I had to send up the milk. I dipped out of the cans into bottles and put them on the dumb waiter. I never received orders that I had to disinfect myself."

And yet those people down east tell us they are enlightened and they look with pity on the people of the west. If such a thing was done in the west it would create a scandal that would end with the arrest of every one connected with it.

Why Mine Was Closed.

Mr. Mann denies that C.N.R. and General Development Co. are at Loggerheads.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—A report from Edmonton that the Bruce Mines had been closed down as the result of a clash between the Canadian Northern Railway and the General Development Company, was denied this afternoon by D. D. Mann. Mr. Mann said that the two roads were anxious to locate in the field. The Canadian Northern Railway has location plans ready, but these have not been approved by the railway board, work on the mines became very difficult, so they had been closed down until spring.

He Feared Blood Poison.

But Zam-Buk Saved His Thumb.

Once again a case is reported in which the popular balm Zam-Buk has saved a worker from the terrible effects of blood-poisoning. Mr. Alfred H. Orth, of Shiley, Ont., says:

"While at work I had the misfortune to run a rusty nail under my thumb nail, to the depth of about one and a half inches. The pain was terrible and what I feared was that the nail, being so dirty and rusty, would set up festering and blood-poison. I knew from previous experience how good Zam-Buk was, so I cleaned the thumb nail with a little Zam-Buk, and ran it into the wound. The result was wonderful! It soothed the pain and the thumb actually did not swell. Zam-Buk kept away all inflammation. I was able to go on with my work all the time, and in a few days the thumb was as good as ever. A balm which can do this should be in every working man's home."

Zam-Buk is the finest form of "insurance" for all workers. Its antiseptic power is so great that no disease can live in it, and it immediately applied to a sore or injury, or diseased patch, all danger of blood-poisoning is averted.

Being composed of pure vegetable essences, Zam-Buk is an ideal balm for babies and young children, and mothers will find it far superior to the ordinary salves, some of which contain harmful mineral poisons, rancid animal fats, etc.

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for ulcers, abscesses, eczema, ringworm, blood-poison, scalp sores, chapped hands, cold sores, inflamed patches, bad leg, varicose veins, and ulcers, piles, cuts, burns, bruises, and all skin diseases and injuries. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers at 50c a box, 3 for $1.25. Post free from ZamiBuk Co., Toronto, for price. Avoid harmful imitations and substitutes.

C.P.R. to Control the Grand Trunk.

A Strange Story of an Amalgamation.

Montreal, Sept. 17.—A well-informed man made the statement today that one reason why Canadian Pacific is not keeping up its service in various parts of the country, and is not making the improvements that were proposed in Ontario, is that main efforts of the two or three men at the head of the company have been devoted of late to an attempt at securing control of the Grand Trunk railway and perhaps the Grand Trunk Pacific, and that a mighty consolidation is at this moment under the consideration of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

It is said here that the real reason why a temporary arrangement is being made between the government and G. T. R. for the latter taking over that portion of the transcontinental system between Winnipeg and Lake Superior Junction, is that Mr. Haves and his associates have decided to jump the original agreement and under no condition to sign it, and that the so-called temporary agreement that is now being signed is the preliminary to an entire new agreement more in favor of the company.

What About Oliver?

There Is A Belief In Ottawa That He Is Going To Be Dropped.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—There is a growing belief in Ottawa that Hon. Frank Oliver is going to be dropped like a redinder. He has been getting the government into trouble, more particularly over his immigration regulations which the cabinet, while the Minister of the Interior was in the Northwest, were forced to alter. The regulations, as they worked out, were a death blow to immigration from the motherland. Of course, Mr. Oliver is by no means enthusiastic over any British immigration. Mr. Oliver's whole stock in trade is that he has the reputation of being honest. The admirable quality has kept him in office in spite of the fierce blunders he has made in the administration of his department. Miserable adherence to red tape has grievous wrongs being perpetrated on homesteaders, and there was even an outbreak in parliament last session against him over this by some of his own party.

Then there is the Cushing Cross incident in Alberta. Mr. Oliver is accused of having instigated the whole trouble, and now the whole party are clamoring for his blood. Will they get it? They will if Laurier feels he cannot afford to disregard them.

Who will be Oliver's successor if he goes? Everybody points to John W. D'Almeida, Editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, who is the strongest Liberal in the West, inside or outside the Cabinet.

DIED OF HEART FAILURE.

Innisfail, Sept. 23.—Heart failure, following a slight knife wound in the thigh, caused the death of Councillor A. E. McRae here yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Deceased was a harness-maker by trade, and sat on a knife after waiting on a customer. A slight wound was inflicted, and Dr. Allen dressed the wound. Just after the doctor had left the house the deceased complained of his heart, and passed away very suddenly.

Mr. McRae came here from Galt eight years ago, and leaves a widow and son to survive him. He served as councillor and mayor of Innisfail holding the latter position during 1907. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, and a past master of the I.O.O.F.

G.T.P. TAKING OVER SECTION OF N.T.R.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 27.—Saturday next, the G.T.P. takes over from the National Transcontinental Commissioner, the section between Winnipeg and Superior Junction. As the G.T.P. branch from that point to the head of the lakes is to be completed, the company will commence operation right through from Edmonton to Fort William, twelve hundred miles in all. The new section west of Winnipeg will at present be used for grain traffic and freight only.

The tomato is a botanical Jekyll and Hyde, and can be classed as either a vegetable or fruit, though it ranks as a vegetable for table use. The pumpkin and squash are botanically fruits classed as vegetables, and the melon of the same family is termed a fruit. However, if they are properly prepared the scientific nomenclature is a matter of indifference to the consumer of pumpkin pie or tomato catsup.

BRIEF NEWS.

A SAD CASE

(Calgary News) A particularly revolting story was that related to Judge Britton and the jury at the Barrie, Ont., assizes yesterday when Mary Dolan, the comely daughter of an Upper-grove farmer, was charged with having murdered her illegitimate child. Yet while many of the features of the case were revolting, some were of a nature to arouse pity in the breasts of those made acquainted with them. The woman was found guilty with a recommendation to mercy, for the jury was of the opinion that, while she was largely, she was not wholly to blame, the evidence tending to show that the girl had fallen under the influence of Thomas McNally, proprietor of an Orillia poolroom, who had twice wronged her and who had twice induced her to get rid of their illegitimate offspring by foul means. McNally made her occupy a back room above a stable in Orillia for months, without even the meagre comforts of life, and this in the coldest months of winter. So completely was she his slave, that his commands were law to her, even when they meant that she must murder her own baby. The question arises whether McNally is a murderer or whether McNally was virtually the murderer. In the eyes of the law, Mary Dolan is a murderer but this seems to be one of the rare cases where the law is not attainable. Not only does Mary Dolan suffer through McNally's villainy, but so does McNally's wife and two children. What is to be done with such a man?

LATER

Judge Britton has condemned Thomas McNally as well as Mary Dolan to be hung in December for the murder of the child.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of The News. Dear Sir,—As Mr. Meeres invites other views, I will ask you for a little space your valuable columns to express few thoughts. I am thankful that I have been benefited by having the privilege of sending to your very excellent high school.

I beg leave to ask Mr. Meeres how he figures in dollars and cents the cost of the high school or any school, we know the country without the school would be next to worthless. The proof of this is the countries that have the most money and the highest type of civilization and Christianity. The foundation is the school; and furthermore it is the safe guard of life, property and liberty. Mr. Meeres, do you not put up an object against the poor in favor of the rich? All the logic I see in this is of mediaeval days, returning to the old custom of children going to school with a penny in their hand for tuition.

If there are any parents that are so poor that they cannot afford to send their children to school, their taxes would not be much; but the widow's mite, which might be too small to pay the extra tax, would bar her children from school at a very tender age, and help to fill the child's labor market, which is a curse to any enlightened country.

As I stated before, my boy has received benefit from the high school; but is not that sum small from a money view, and has not that been fully paid in an indirect way, for instance, by board, books, clothing (not bought at Eaton's) and fifty dollars school tax in Valley Centre yearly and not a child going for years except to the high school. I wish our district schools were graded but they can not be at present. They are a great benefit, and no right-minded man would want to do without them. Every person that lives in a rural district and does his trading in Red Deer is a supporter of the town as well as the school.

People may differ on an up-to-date town. The enlightenment of the twentieth century calls for a town that owns and operates its own utilities. They do not vote their birthright away in resources that were provided them by nature, to electric light and telephone company, bonus fraud, flour mill promoters, by so doing assist them in defrauding the farmers out of their grain, and charging a farmer twice what they ought to be for weighing any thing he has to sell.

How is it that so many ratepayers in an up-to-date town cannot afford to send their children to school after they reach the public school leaving? That looks bad for the town and the welfare of the country; but if I should admit that was true, which I do not, your theory would only be a larger burden on the poor by taxing men so that they have to keep their children in ignorance; so they will be servants to the wealthy.

THOS. BROWN.

MILLET FARMER KILLED

Philip Fornley while coming in with a load of oats, four miles from Millet, was instantly killed in a runaway Friday, July 2nd, about 2:30. He was seated on the top of the load when the horses shied at some object in the road, gave a sudden lurch, thereby causing Fornley to lose his balance and tumble off the wagon. As he fell the heavy wheels rolled over his body, crushing the life out of him.

The accident is an especially sad one, as the deceased leaves a wife and two small children. He was 52 years of age.

The BLACK BAG

Again he put a hand upon the bell pull. Simultaneously Dorothy and Kirkwood rose.

"Mr. Brewster," said the girl, her eyes starred with tears of gratitude. "I don't, I really don't know how."

"My dear," said the old gentleman, "you will think me most appropriately by continuing, to the best of your ability, to resemble your mother more remarkably every minute."

"But I," began Kirkwood.

"You, my dear Philip, can thank me best by permitting me to enjoy myself, which I am doing thoroughly at the present moment. And," he added as a mild appeal at the door, "I have already achieved a scheme for the discomfort of our friends in the evening, a scheme which we will discuss with our dinner while the weather range and imagine a vain thing in the outer dark."

Kirkwood would have lingered, but of such inflexible temper was his host that he bowed him into the hands of a manservant without permitting him another word.

"Not a syllable," he insisted. "I protest I am devoted with curiosity, my dear boy, but I have no time for compassion. When we are well on with our meal, when we are strong enough with food and drink, then you may begin. But not a word, to the valet, 'do your duty.'"

He heard the young man's footsteps diminish on the stairway, and again he smiled the indulgent, melancholy smile of mellow years. "Youth," he whispered softly. "Romance! And now," with a brisk change of tone as he closed the study door, "now we are ready for this interesting Sir Calendar."

A suspicion of moisture glimmered in his eyes. "Dorothy!" he whispered huskily, and a little later, rising, he proceeded to the telephone.

An hour and a half later Kirkwood, his self respect something restored by a bath, a shave and a resumption of clothes which had been hastily but thoroughly cleaned and pressed by Brewster's valet, his confidence and courage mounting high under the continued influence of generous wine, substantial food, the presence of his host's mistress and the admiration which was unceasingly of his friend, concluded at the dinner table his narration.

"And that," he said, looking up at his valet, "is about all."

"Bravo!" applauded Brewster, eyes shining with delight.

"All?" interposed Dorothy in warm reproach. "But what he hasn't told!"

"Which, my dear, is to be accounted for wholly by a very creditable modesty rarely encountered in the young men of the present day. It was, of course, altogether in keeping with those of my younger years. Yes, Wotton?"

Brewster sat back in his chair, indicating an attention to a communication murmured by the butler.

Coffee was set before them by Wotton, the impassive, Brewster refusing it, with a little smile, saying the way, he said, "while you were preparing for dinner Wotton returned from his constitutional with the news that, leaving the curling iron on watch at the corner, Captain Stryker had temporarily made himself scarce. However, we need feel no anxiety concerning his whereabouts, for he reappeared in good time and a motor car, from which it became evident that you have not overrated the situation."

The fiasco of the cab chase is not to be re-nacted."

Resolutely the girl repressed a gasp of dismay. Kirkwood stared moodily into his cup.

"These men bore me fearfully," he commented at last.

"And so," continued Brewster, "I brought me of a counterstroke. It is my good fortune to have a friend whose whim it is to support a touring car chiefly in innocent dilemmas. Accordingly I have telephoned him and commended the use of this machine-mechanical tool. Therefore, my betting man, I am willing to risk recklessly a few pence in support of my contention that of the two, Captain Stryker's car and ours, the latter will prove considerably the more speedy."

"In short, I suggest," he concluded, thoughtfully frowning his long white fingers, "that, avoiding the hazards of cab and railway carriage, we motor to Culter's, the night being fine and the moon, I am told exceptionally good. Miss Dorothy, what do you think?"

Instantly the girl looked to Kirkwood, then shifted her glance to her host. "I think you are wonderfully thoughtful and kind," she said simply. "And you, Philip?"

"It is an inspiration," the younger man declared. "I can't think of anything better calculated to throw them off than to distance them by motor car. It would be always possible to trace our journey by the tracks."

"Then," announced Brewster, making as if to rise, "we had best go. If neither my hearing nor Captain Stryker's car deceives me, our fiery chariot is plying at the door."

A little sobered from the confident spirit of gayety in which they had dined, they left the table. Not that in their hearts either greatly questioned their ultimate triumph, but they were allowing for the possibility of error so apt to set at naught human calculations. Calendar himself had at ready been proved fallible. Within the bounds of possibility their turn to stumble might not be imminent.

When he left himself dwell upon their utter helplessness to give Calendar name by commonplace methods, the maddened Kirkwood. With another sound he had been so simple a matter to put a period to his activities by a word to the police. But he was her father. For that reason he must continually be snared. Even though—desperate extremely, she should give consent to the aid of the adventurer, retaliation would follow swift and sure, for they might not overlook or gloss the fact that hers had been the hands responsible for the theft of the jewels. Innocent though she had been in committing that larceny, a cat-paw guided by an intelligence unscrupulous and male, the law would not hold her guiltless were she once brought within its cognizance, nor possibly would the Hallams, mother and son.

Before the door a motor car waited, engines humming impatiently, mechanical ready in his seat, an uncouth shape in goggles and leather garments that shone like oilskins under the street lights.

At one corner another and a smaller car stood in waiting, its lamps like baleful eyes glaring through the night. In the shadows across the way a lengthy shadow lurked—Stryker, beyond reasonable question. Otherwise the street was deserted. Not even that adventurous lobby of the early evening was now in evidence.

Dorothy presently joining them, Brewster led the way to the door.

Kirkwood to the right, Brewster to the left of Dorothy, the former carrying the treasure bag, they hastened down the walk and through the gate to the car.

The watcher across the way was moved to whistle shrilly. The other car lunged forward nervously.

Brewster, taking the front seat beside the engine, drove the tonneau to Kirkwood and Dorothy. As the American slammed the door the car lurched forward, the engine coughing the resurrector bag, they hastened down the walk and through the gate to the car.

sharp tones and querulously impatient question, "What is the trouble?" His reply came in a single word, not distinguishable.

The girl sat up, opening her eyes, wondering her own. "What is it?"

Kirkwood bent forward and touched Brewster on the shoulder. The latter turned to him a face lined with deep concern.

"Trouble," he announced superfluously. "I fear we have blundered."

"What is it?" asked Dorothy in a troubled voice.

"Petrol seems to be running low. Charles here," he referred to the mechanic—"says the tank must be refilled. We'll go on at best with a few miles left."

"You aren't afraid, Dorothy?"

She answered quietly, "I am with you, Philip."

CHAPTER XXX.

A taxi cab, gay and again checked in deference to the street traffic, Brewster's motor car rolled, with resonant humming of the engine, down the Cromwell road, swerved into Warwick road and swung northward through Kensington to Shepherd's Bush. Here Kirkwood, with a gasp of surprise, perceived a familiar cable, never gaining, to the westward.

To some extent he reckoned without his motor car. As long as they trailed within the metropolitan limits, constrained to observe a decorous pace, the view of the city from the car was not so good as from the street. But once they had run through Acton and crossed the river, they were without the city bounds—then the complexion of the business was suddenly changed.

Not too soon for the sport, Calendar was to have (Kirkwood would have said in lurid American idiom) a run for his money. The scattered lights of Shepherd's Bush, which he beheld them before Brewster chose to give the word to the mechanic.

Quietly the latter threw in the clutch for the third time, and the fourth. The car leaped forward like a startled race horse. The motor lifted merrily into its deep throated song of the open road, its exhaust silken banners streaming into a sonorous and sustained purr.

Kirkwood and the girl were first jarred violently forward, then thrown together. She caught his arm to steady herself. It seemed the most natural thing in the world that he should take her hand and pass it beneath his arm, holding her so, his fingers closed above her own. Before they had reached the end of the road, he had dropped the rear.

Not quite so far had they distanced Calendar's trailing wheels as the four glaring eyes. The pursuers put forth a gallant effort to hold their place. At intervals during the first few minutes a heavy rumble and crashing could be heard behind them. Gradually it subsided, dying on the wings of the free running wind that buffeted their faces as mile after mile was rolled off.

The wide, darkling English countryside opened out before them, sweet and fresh. The Tables will prevent these deadly summer complaints or cure them if they come once suitably. Mrs. J. Morin, Ste. SUMMER RECORDS OF CHILDREN'S DEATHS

Records show that by far the greatest number of deaths among little ones occur during the hot summer months. The excessive heat, the difficulty in keeping baby's milk sweet, improper food all tend towards bringing on these dreaded baby troubles—cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery, and other stomach and bowel troubles. To guard against these troubles Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent these deadly summer complaints or cure them if they come once suitably. THE ENGLISH SUNDAY.

Very Few Londoners 'ow Go to the Church Services.

Time was when the London Sunday was traditionally a day of depression. The staid and respectable British subject attended church services and elsewhere shut himself in his castle and banged down the portcullis. Nor friend nor foe might enter his hospitable could cheer the rest of the week. But that one day was consigned to gloom, it is a thing of the past. Church attendance in the great metropolis has declined. Rev. Dr. R. E. Horton, speaking in a chapel at Hampstead, declared that unless God arrests the habit of our people, the congregations may continue to decrease. One lamentable result is a statistical decrease, by comparison between a Sunday in 1903 and a recent Sunday, in church collections in London from $250,000 to $200,000.

But, after all, this financial aspect of the case is not so serious as that statement of the Rev. Dr. Horton. The prosperous who choose to seek physical and mental recreation in the open country do not forget that the greatest of these is charity. On a recent Sunday collectors with their baskets were assigned to the various stations of the Metropolitan and District railways, and of the "tubes," and read and sold millions of silver and copper from thousands of travelers. Appeals for extra contributions to special funds outside the churches, have also met with generous response.

One lamentable result is a statistical decrease, by comparison between a Sunday in 1903 and a recent Sunday, in church collections in London from $250,000 to $200,000.

But, after all, this financial aspect of the case is not so serious as that statement of the Rev. Dr. Horton. The prosperous who choose to seek physical and mental recreation in the open country do not forget that the greatest of these is charity. On a recent Sunday collectors with their baskets were assigned to the various stations of the Metropolitan and District railways, and of the "tubes," and read and sold millions of silver and copper from thousands of travelers. Appeals for extra contributions to special funds outside the churches, have also met with generous response.

Rev. Dr. Horton, speaking in a chapel at Hampstead, declared that unless God arrests the habit of our people, the congregations may continue to decrease. One lamentable result is a statistical decrease, by comparison between a Sunday in 1903 and a recent Sunday, in church collections in London from $250,000 to $200,000.
